An imagined bird's eye view of Jerusalem from the north at the time of Daniel.

The original city was built on Mount Ophel to the south east, it was called Salem, later Jeru-Salem (Judges 10:1) and Jebus (Judges 19:10) an inhabited by the Jebusites, a Canaanite people. At the time of Abraham Melchizedek was king of Salem and a priest of God most High (Genesis 14:18,20). When David conquered Jerusalem in about year 1000 BC, he called the city Zion –the city of David. Some historians suggest that Zion also included the mountaintop opposite Ophel to the southwest on the other side of the valley of Tyropoeon.

The Temple was situated on a third mountain, Mount Moriah, the place to which Abraham took his son Isaac to offer him to the Lord (Genesis 22:2). Originally this was the threshingfloor belonging to the Jebusé e Araunah which King David bought in order to build an altar to the Lord. Here King Solomon built the first Temple. Betlehem, King David's birth place, and several smaller cities and villages can be seen beyond Jerusalem and on the horizon the coutours of the Judean Wilderness.

Jerusalem was surrounded by deep ravines on three sides, the Kidron Valley to the east between the city and the Mount Olives, the Hinnon Valleys (Hebrew: ge hinnom, Greek: Gehenna) to the south and to the west. These deep ravines made it almost impossible to conquer the city. Only from the north, along Mount Moriah, was it possible to get near to the city by natural means. King Hezekiah erected an extra wall in order to defend the city against attackers from the north. Ancieent Jerusalem was the most beautiful of cities. A contemporary of David decribed Zion as the perfection of beauty.
